This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

HISTORICAL NOTE.

Lawrence has long enjoyed the benefits of a good Library. The Franklin Library Association was chartered by the Legislature of Massachusetts, April, 1847, and the following letter to Capt. Chas. H. Bigelow, its first President, not only gives in very concise terms the wishes and motives of the donor of the first valuable gift to the Library, but is also a key to the motives which inspired its founders.

Boston, July 5, 1847.

My Dear Sir.—I was gratified to notice an Act passed by the last General Court, incorporating the Franklin Library Association in the new town. Subsequently I have seen in the newspapers an account of its organization, and that you were elected President. I am happy in the knowledge that there exists among the people, a just appreciation of the value and importance of early attention being given to schools, churches, and public libraries. It is no less the duty than the privilege of those who possess an influence in creating towns and cities, to lay their foundations deep and strong. Let the standard be high in religious, moral, and intellectual culture, and there can be no well-grounded fear for the results.

There will soon gather around a large number of mechanics and others, who will desire to obtain a knowledge of the higher mechanical arts. You will probably receive into your large machine shop (now under construction) a number of apprentices, who are to be trained to the use of tools. The more thorough the education you give them, the more skilfully the tools will be used when placed in their hands.

If you possess a well furnished Library, containing books, drawings, etc., with the mechanical and scientific periodicals of the day, to which the whole body of those engaged in all the varieties of mechanics have access, you will, I am quite certain, at an early day send forth into the community a class of well educated machinists, whose labors and influence will be felt throughout our country.

I feel a deep interest in this question of educating men, who can take care of themselves, and do something to develop the mental resources of the present and future generations, as well as to make contributions to the common stock of practical knowledge and national resources of this great Union.

The supply of well educated, scientific mechanics in our community, is entirely inadequate to its wants.

I wish to live long enough to see the experiment fairly tried, whether this deficiency may not be remedied, and am therefore in favor of placing in the hands of those who are or may be residents in the new town, all the appliances to obtain such an object.

In futherance of the plan proposed by your Society, I offer through you, for the acceptance of the Franklin Library Association, the sum of one thousand dollars, which the government of the institution will please invest in such scientific and other works as will tend to create good mechanics, good Christians, and good patriots.

Accept the assurance with which I remain your friend,

ABBOTT LAWRENCE.

Eight years later, in 1855, Mr. Lawrence "rested from his labors," but he had not lost his interest in the new city to which so much of his attention had been given; nor did he forget his protegé the Franklin Library; leaving by his will the generous sum of five thousand dollars for the purpose of increasing its value and utility.

Other gentlemen had made some valuable presents of books, but these gifts of money to be invested in books were, it is believed, the only ones received.

The expenses, rent, librarian's salary, etc., etc., must of course be defrayed from the income received from sales of shares and from annual assessments. The price of shares was at first fixed at ($10,) ten dollars each, the annual assessment at two dollars per annum; and the Library was open to any person willing to unite with the Society and purchase a share. But inasmuch as the price of a share was a bar to many, in 1850 the Association amended their Constitution, so as to allow the use of the Library "to persons not members of the Association, subject to the regulations thereof, on payment of an annual sum to be fixed by them, not less than the annual assessment of members."

The membership and the number of readers still remaining comparatively small, and being still desirous of enlisting the public interest more fully, early in 1853, the value of the shares was reduced to five dollars; and the assessment to one dollar per annum. And in 1857 a vote was passed authorizing the Government to open the Library to any persons not members, satisfactory to them, for the nominal sum of one dollar per year. Other efforts had been made from time to time, by organizing courses of public lectures by popular lecturers at low rates, to attract attention to the Library and Reading-room, with indifferent success—the Association in some cases sustaining pecuniary loss.

The Library had now increased to nearly 4000 volumes. The reading-room connected with it contained several newspapers and most of the valuable scientific, mechanical, and literary periodicals of the day; but the main object of the original founders was not attained. The number of readers and members was still small, and the annual income only sufficient to pay the current expenses. The growth of the Library itself was slow, because only the income of the unexpended portion of Mr. Lawrence's donation was appropriated annually for books. There seemed now to be but one barrier to success, and that not a very formidable one apparently; yet it proved to be an effectual one: it was a simple paper dollar.

It could hardly be expected by the public that the association would or could pay all the expenses, assume all the labor and throw open their doors to the world, without any consideration. They had reached almost that point—and thus continued till the latter part of 1867, when it was thought advisable to offer the property to the city, under suitable conditions, for a Free Library. A proposition was made to the City Government of 1868, but it was not accepted,—a difference of opinion at that time existing as to the expediency of the step.

Four years later, however, aid came from an unexpected quarter. Hon. Daniel A. White, of Salem, had, by his will, left certain property in the hands of a Board of Trustees,—consisting originally of the following named gentlemen: Charles S. Storrow, N. G. White, and H. K. Oliver,—the income of which should be appropriated to a course of Lectures, free "to the industrial classes" of Lawrence, and for the purposes of a Library.

The income of that fund has furnished a course of free lectures from the best talent of the land, for several years, and has now reached a point where it is more than sufficient to defray these expenses, and can furnish a considerable sum annually for books. The Trustees, however, have no authority to erect a building for the purpose of a Library. This must be done by the city or otherwise, if the people desire to reap the full benefit of the bequest of Judge White.

In 1872 the Franklin Library Association appointed a Committee consisting of Messrs. George S. Merrill, J. R. Rollins and John C. Dow, to confer with the City Government, and also with the Trustees of the White Fund, and this conference (the necessary authority to surrender their trust having been previously obtained from the Legislature,) resulted in a renewed offer to transfer their property, consisting of somewhat more than 4,000 volumes and nearly $3,000 in money, to the City. The Trustees of the White Fund proposed to contribute the first year the sum of one thousand dollars, and to make an annual contribution thereafter. These propositions were accepted, and an Ordinance was passed July 2d, 1872, establishing the Free Public Library of the City of Lawrence.

Further particulars of the organization and commencement of the Library will be found in the first Annual Report of the Board of Trustees, which was submitted to the City on the 1st of January, 1873.

ART. XII. Dictionaries, encyclopædias and other works of reference shall be loaned for home use only on an order signed by at least a majority of the Library Committee; other books, placed in the reference library because unsuitable for general circulation, may be loaned at the discretion of the Librarian under such rules as the Library Committee shall impose.
